Mr. Howard of Mr. after presenting several petitions which were referred in the ordinary mode, observed that he had some instructed in present to the House, and which use of apeculiarly important and interesting a nature, as to call for some comments on his part requesting the attention of the House. It may the memorial of the Baltimore and Ohie kell Road Company, asking the assistance of the General Government in the prosecution of that stupendous work. The peculiar situation and circumstances of the State of Maryland redered this request on their part necessary and reasonable. The State of New Yell circumstances of the State of Maryland readered this request on their part necessary and reasonable. The State of New York from her great wealth, population and power, had been enabled to construct her rame from her own resources. The State of Pennsylvania, equally distinguished for riches and enterprise, was completting also by her own finds a great work corresponding with the Va great work corresponding with the New York Conal, and thus prosecuting the chain of internal communication between all parts of the union. The State of Maryland, however, from her limited territorial extent, and comparitively confined means, was analy to complete her great work without asking for the aid of others, and coming to the General Government for assistance. The opening of communication between the eastern and western States must be acknowledged by every member of the House, to be an object of the highest importance, and for the advancement of which, the Confederacy was in a greatmensure intended. The capital of the Company was $4,000,000, of which $5,000,000 were private subscriptions, $500,000 belonged to the State of Maryland, and $500,000 to the City of Baltimore; with that capital they have
